

Diane Yendol-Hoppey is a Professor and the Dean of the College of Education and Human Services at the University of North Florida. Prior to this position Diane held positions at the University of Florida, West Virginia University, and the University of South Florida. She received her Ph.D. in Curriculum and Instruction from The Pennsylvania State University.

Diane's has served in a variety of leadership positions where she engaged in extensive collaboration with school district, corporate and non-profit partners interested in improving teaching and learning. Her work has united practitioners and university faculty to create and sustain nationally recognized school-university partnerships. Diane's research specifically focuses on facilitating student learning within urban contexts through partnerships, enhanced job-embedded professional development, field-based teacher education, and teacher leadership.

Diane has co-authored four books as well as published over 50 articles. Her work has appeared in such journals as Teachers College Record, Educational Researcher, and Journal of Teacher Education.

Diane's spent her first decade in education, teaching in Pennsylvania and Maryland.